
Favorite Beer . . . hmmm

Posted by danpogo - 2008/07/27 18:36

Saying you have a favorite beer is like saying you have a favorite song , there are so many! It's now summer, so a nice cold refreshing beer is good, something as simple as Coors Light or Budweiser. I can already hear it, "What the hell does this guy know about beer when he's talking about Coors Light?" I just know what I like, and also my taste can be more complex, like some good Sam Adams Octoberfest in the Fall, Sierra Nevada Celebration Ale in the fall/winter. Also Chimay and of course Dogfishhead 60 minute IPA, in my experience the 90 and 120 are too much. I'm in the Trenton, NJ area, and we have some good breweries around here, notably Triumph in Princeton, their IPA is AMAZING! All of this is just to say that I guess I really don't have a favoriter per say, i guess if I had to choose one, it'd be the beer I'm drinking at the time I'm asked the question. Right now it's Heineken! Cans are better the bottles in this case.

Dan

=====

Re:Favorite Beer . . . hmmm

Posted by Celt44 - 2008/08/08 08:31

I know what you mean. Normally, I won't touch the macro stuff, but recently my best option at a Baseball game was a Miller Lite. While sitting in the 90 degree heat it didn't taste half-bad!

=====

Re:Favorite Beer . . . hmmm

Posted by danpogo - 2008/08/08 08:46

That's what I'm talking about! And recently I've discovered this wonderful invention, the coozie! I know it's been around for a long time but they're invaluable when drinking outside in the heat!

=====